Chattanooga Tenders Nominee Ovation and Cheers Attacks on Wilson and League of Nations Plan.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. Oct. 14.-o the voters of the Democratic outh, Senator Harding last night addressed an appeal for earnest con-ideration of Republican principles, and gave a promise that Republican auccess in the election would mean "the same policy of helpful protection to all American production

In a speech at the auditorium here, the Republican presidential neminec uggested "diversified politics" as the He emphasized that his party had no policy for one section that it did hesded a day when the interde be fully understood

Democratic administration attacked for its conduct of af-s both at home and abroad. President Wilson, he said, repeatedly had dictated to congress, even at the ex-pense of yielating pledges of his own platform, and finally had attempted to force acceptance of the riving the senate of its constitution-

Arriving here early in the forem, the candidate spent virtually whole day in an automobile tour section about Chattanooga made historic by the battles of Mis-sionary Ridge, Lookout Mountain and Chickamauga. In his address he eferred feelingly to the experience, feelaring the day had given him a ew appreciation of the significance of the Civil war in the making of America. He added that an amsignify in the federal constitution had been responsible for the war and voiced a hope that no similar cavoiced a hope that no similar ca-tastrophe would be courted by acepting a league covenant "contain-ng a score of ambiguities."

Referring to the ratification of the woman suffrage amendment, for which Tennessee gave the deciding voice. Senstor Harding declared the republic would be safe as long as women give their best to citizenship, lie urged that women should not segregate themselves into a party of their own.

Flays Wilson Policy.

The crowd yelled longest and loudest when the nominee rapped the eague and thrust at President Wil-on's attitude toward congress. They come to their feet and cheered for early a minute when he declard hat "the trouble was that instead of reaking the heart of the world, we vere breaking the heart of the great-st ambition in the world."

The senator also repeated hi plan to put Europe's debt to America into negotiable paper, praised the Cummins-Esch railway act, ad-vocated government economy, and declared that a return of the Republican party to power would mean restoration of the protective tariff

Looking back now in the concord of union," he said, "we note no dif-ference in patriotic love of country, North or South; rather a misunder-standing as to the meaning of it. It little matters now about grievances. about early differences, about the ambittered disappointments. It lit-tie matters now how difficult and was the rebuilding of the tem ple of the reunited republic. The

"Highways of steel. oads and avenue of exchanging onunerce have intersected the old lason and Dixon line, until it is nly a historical memory. Your comnerce is American commerce, Your merce is American commerce. Your industry is American industry. Your production is American production. Your farm products are essential to American life. We are interdependent and the Republican party proclaims the same doctrine of agricultural good fortune in the South that it does in the North. It reaches the same policy of finance North and South. It of finance North and South. It preaches the same policy of a helpful protection to all American producion, North and South,

"We believe in protecting totton and cotton seed products of the South and wheat and wool in the North. We believe in protection for peanuts south and potatoes north. We believe in Southern factories and Northern factories selling to America first, and we acclaim an industrial South as one of the essentials of the ideal republic.

"I want the self-reliant America self-reliant agriculturally, self-reliant politically. That is why I insist that we shall never accept a league of nations with the material heart of military alliance, to rule the world by force of arms. North and South night because the states of the outh thought they had the right to ithdraw from the union. The North withdraw from the union. The North thought the union to be indissoluble. Then came the ensanguined conflict over an ambiguity in the constitution. There are a score of am-biguities in the president's covenant. and he would not tolerate their clarification by reservations.

"I have a deep and abiding faith in American institutions and in the fundamental principles upon which they rest. The people, by their con-stitution have cheerfully enumerated the powers of their governmental agents. Neither agent is superior to the other, and neither owes any de gree of responsibility to the other. For either to invade the field of acion delegated to the other is usure the authority of the other. Dur-ing the life of the present administration this condition, which the constitution prohibits, has arisen again and again. Congress while under Democratic control, was with rare exception a mere echo of the executive. He did not inform them from

Bad Faith Charged.

"The Democratic platform of 1912, for example, declared for a single term, and a bill was actually introsenate, to carry this platform declaration into effect. But the posident not only compelled its abandonment exempting American ships passing through the Panaton canal, from the payment of tolls—and the present executive in specific terms during his first campaign, accepted and ap-proved the declaration—but a Dem-scratic congress was compelled by president to violate the pledge.

If do not need to particularize fur-er. It is notorious that congress. so long as it was controlled by a Liemocratic majority, exercised no will of its own. When the president will of its own. When the president said 'ma'. It went; and when he said 'come' it came. Under his hand congress ceased to function as a coequal branch of the government.

"One of the things I intend to do when I am president, is to reverse that tendency. I shall undertake to bring the government back to the constitution. I shall not submit a treaty to the senate with the arrogant demand that they shall take it or leave it. I shall ask their advice and consent. I shall not undertake to set aside and refuse to enforce an act of congress, as has so recently been done in the case of the merchant marine case. I shall so recently been deaded in the merchant marine case. I shall enforce the laws, whether, I, personally, like them or not; and if I think that any law is vitally unwise or improper, I shall submit the matter with my views to congress. If after all there shall result a disagreement between us upon a matter which

With the United States lighthouse tender Gleander laid up at Cairo, Ill., undergoing repairs, river men claim the condition of the river traveling is becoming deplorable. At the present time the river is very low and with many of the lights out of line, n.w sand bars being formed and crossing hanging from the original course, boats making the run through the upper bends are taking great changes of grounding. Several boats have already gone aground the river men say, and the danger is daily increasing.

However, efforts are being made by rederal officers in charge of rivers and navigation to improve the present conditions on the Mississippi. The Mississippi river is at a lower stage at the time than she has been this year. Thursday morning the stage was 5.6 feet, indicating a fall of 1 of a feet during the last 24 hours.
